LONDON, Nov 7.

We have received the Paris papers of Monday. They are filled with details of the grand religious ceremonies which preceded the opening of the chambers.

Paris, Nov. 4.

Yesterday his Majesty and the Royal Family went in grand procession to the church of Notre Dame, to be present at the Grand Mass of St. Esprit. The procession took place in the following order:—A detachment of gens d'armes, Count Rechechouart, the Commandant of Paris, with his Staff, Count. Lespinois, Governor of the 16th Military Division, and a numerous Staff; the Marechal Duke of Reggio, followed by his Aides de-Camp, and his Staff; afterwards came the mounted National Guards, a squadron of Hussars of the Royal Guards, fourteen Court carriages, a squadron of Body Guards, five Heralds, the King's carriage—his Majesty had on his left, the Dutchess of Angoulême; and in front was Monsieur, in his uniform as col. General of the national Guards, and the Duke of Angoulême as High Admiral. The Duke and Duchess of Berri preceded the procession a quarter of an hour.

The whole was closed by a squadron of the Body Guards of Monsieur, a squadron of Cuirassiers of the guards, and a detachment of gendarmes. As the King passed, acclamations of "Vive le Roi" rent the air.

His Majesty was received at the entrance of the church by the Metropolitan Chapter, at the head of which was M. Jalabert, Vicar General. The Monarch, after having kissed the cross, & received the holy waters and incense, was addressed by Monsieur Jalabert as follows.

"Sir—The Kings of the Earth, always dignified, appear still more so in the temple of the Lord. The people seeing the sovereign, before whom all bow, bending the knee himself before God, are induced to raise their thoughts more than ever to the Throne of the King of Kings. From this point of view they see descend on the Monarch a flood of majesty. A voice from on high, similar to that which heard by the People of Israel assembled at the foot of Mount Sina, a voice from on high: the voice of Religion: proclaims this law supreme. The power of the King comes from God.

"Such, Sir, are the profound sentiments of respect with which the Metropolitan Chapter this day receives the King of France, coming into the House of Prayer in the midst of the Princes of his august family, the Grandees of his Kingdom, and the Deputies of the Departments.

"With Majesty—wisdom, justice, and goodness repose in you. If you were of all Kings the most desired, you are also the most beloved!

"We know sire the prayer which you are about to address to the Almighty. Shall we forget those memorable and religious expressions of your majesty to the Clergy of your Capital and ourselves—this beautiful prayer of the Psalm: 'Elish, O Lord! the work which thou hast commenced, is my prayer; it ought also to be yours.'

"The vase of great value spoken of in Scripture, which when obscured by rust resumes its lustre under the hands of the workman, is the emblem of France, now become the object of Divine predilection and confided by the wisdom of God to the wisdom of his King."

His majesty answered:—

"I am sensible of the sentiments expressed by the Metropolitan Chapter through you. I invite you to unite your prayers with mine to obtain the Divine favor for me and the Chambers, who are about to turn their attention to the destinies of my kingdom."

His majesty and the royal family then advanced towards the choir under the canopy. The bishop of Malo said the high mass. The music was executed by the king's band. The P.alm Exaudiat was sung by the whole assembly with becoming piety and fervor.

The members of the two chambers were placed in the choir, in the Nave in front of the choir.

The duke of Cambridge and Mr. Canning was present.

Prince Tollyrand has arrived at Paris from Valency, to be present at the opening of the sessions.

A boatman of Grand Kemps, on the Rhine, found on the 22d of Oct. a bottle floating, containing a note in Latin, as follows:

"To him who shall find this letter. I am a captive in prison, at Laufer, borg on the Rhine; my dungeon is subterranean; nor does he who is now in possession of this paper, now the place. I cannot write more because I am rigorously and cruelly confined."

Mr. Pinkney has taken leave of our sovereign, and has set out for St. Petersburg. There is every reason to believe that all the differences between the United States and our court are terminated. Our honor has received no stain, and it could receive none under a Prince who is fully conscious of the dignity of his crown and the rank which his dynasty holds in Europe.

Austria has shewn upon this occasion that she was ready to support our just pretensions. It is thought that a treaty between our court and the United States has been proposed, and that it will be very advantageous to us. Advantages have been guaranteed to the Americans in the ports of Sicily.

Our affairs with the court of Rome seem to take a favorable turn. A journey is spoken of, in which the Pope and our august monarch will meet on the frontier of their states. We hear no more of the departure of the royal family of Spain.

It is thought the works going on at Chioja have some other object than the residence of his majesty king Charles IV. The Emperor of Austria is expected in February.

The money which came from Algiers was very seasonable, for it served to pay the foreign troops. His majesty, to spare his subjects, imposes upon himself all sorts of privations, and the people pay him with loyalty and love for all his sacrifices.

We mentioned the death of the king of Wirtemberg yesterday. No order for a general mourning has yet been issued. It is probable that the death of this sovereign, who did not stand in the highest possible estimation among his subjects, will put an end to the political squabbles, which have long agitated his kingdom.—The states of Wirtemberg, as the representatives of the people are there called, have struggled most manfully for a free constitution for the last two years.

It has been agreed by the allied powers that Portugal shall receive a share of the French contributions. The principle on which this has been decided seems perfectly reasonable.

Orders were yesterday issued for the royal Yacht to be got in readiness with all possible speed to proceed to Calais to bring over to England the Grand Duke Nicholas, brother of the Emperor of Russia. St. Alban's House, in Stratford place which was occupied by the arch-dukes of Austria, is preparing for the reception of his Imperial Highness during his stay in England.

All the reports about the escape of Bonaparte or attempts to enable him to escape, are unfounded, arising in one ship misunderstanding another at sea.

ALEXANDRIA.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 2.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASHINGTON.

New-Year's Day, 1817.

The whole of yesterday was devoted by the House of Representatives to the case of the claim bill, and the commissioner under it, Mr. R. B. Lee. The select committee laid before the house a report desiring in the conclusion of it to be discharged from the further consideration of the matter. As many of your readers will require a clue to this complication of committees and reports, with which the zeal of certain gentlemen has intangled this affair, I will give it to you, as developed in a very handsome speech by Mr. Mills. The committee of claims and a select committee were directed to take cognizance of this alarming circumstance: the former to enquire into the quality of the act of last session in order to see whether any alterations in it might be advisable: the latter to examine into and report their opinions upon the commissioners' decisions in the cases of Carroll's and Ringgold's claims, &c. The select committee however, when they got to the threshold of their place was already occupied by the committee of claims, who in their amiable earnestness to find out the guilt of the commissioner, if any findable there might be, had generously anticipated the intended inquiry of the select ones, and even taken possession of the huge mass of documents sent to the house at their request, by the President, and which came deposited in a large trunk, the very sight of which would have appalled any man not endowed with the most steady going, courageous industry and zeal in such cases. The select committee, finding this, suspended their proceedings, in which you will say they were not very much to be blamed, though some gentlemen in the house seemed to think otherwise; while the committee of claims took up those cases I have mentioned, terrible though they were, and produced all the noise about them, which has kept the house on the alert for the past part of the session, and has been heard all over the union.

Thus circumstanced, what could the select committee do? were they to go over the ground that had already been sufficiently trampled by the committee of claims, and present the same facts to the house, in other forms? No, feeling that if their opinions on the subject were the same as those of the committee of claims, their report would be but an useless echo, and that if on the contrary they should differ from them, the two reports would present the ludicrous spectacle of warfare and contradiction between two committees of the House, they thought it best, as best it certainly was, to abstain altogether from expressing their opinions. Individually however, some of them did let out their opinion, and that opinion was honorable to Mr. Lee. On these grounds they desired to be discharged from the further consideration of the affair; and Mr. Williams of N. C. who, I believe was chairman of the committee, made a motion for the purpose, in which it appeared from the result that he had the judgment of the house along with him.

Mr. Forsyth however opposed it, & insisted that the object in appointing the select committee and therefore the duty of that committee was to examine ALL THE CASES on which the commissioner had made decisions and to report whether the said commissioner had, or had not acted corruptly. And he declared that the commissioners awards in some cases had been bottomed on evidence that was not only not competent, but not credible.

On the other hand however, it was suggested that to examine ALL the cases as there were not less than eight hundred mentioned, and to sift the evidence that had been exhibited in them would be rather difficult,—since at three days for each case which was a correct average allowance, it would take the committee about 2400 day to go through the reference; while as vast numbers of the witnesses were 500 miles off, it might be not altogether convenient to assemble them at the door of the committee rooms, in the mean time those claimants whose rights, not even the committee of claims had questioned would be left in extreme distress.

Mr. Forsyth had said that the sole evidence upon which the commissioner had decided some of the cases, was that of British Deserters. This was denied by Mr. Mills who stated that it was true the British soldiers were examined—but that their testimony was amply corroborated by the evidence of persons who were in the house at the time, and by a number of attendant circumstances. The motion of Williams was granted, & the committee was accordingly discharged.

The bill repealing the act of last session was then brought under consideration of the house in committee, and Mr. Wright made a long and animated speech in favour of the commissioner who, he shewed to have acted under the authority of advice from the executive. And there it sticks to be moved again on Thursday.

Corn Exchange, London, Nov. 15.—The wind having been contrary since Wednesday, has deprived us of a supply of most grain, which was expected this morning; and although there was no advance in prices, in consequence of our ports being now open for the importation of that grain, as well as for barley, rye, and oats: the latter article is nearly unsaleable, as the consumers are holding off till they see the extent of the foreign arrivals: what little barley was left over on Wednesday met ready sale this morning but at no amendment in price.

The aggregate averages for the twelve maritime counties, by which foreign importations are regulated, are at last definitively struck. Wheat, barley, rye and oats are admitted: the particulars will be published in the Gazette of tomorrow evening.

FROM HAYTI.

A respectable mercantile friend has sent us a French copy of the correspondence between Petion and the commissioners sent by Louis 18th to negotiate with him concerning the recognition of Hayti. The following proclamation may be considered as exhibiting the spirit in which that negotiation was treated by Petion, & his resolute rejection of any attempt to encroach upon the liberty and independence of the people of whom he is the chief.

Translated for the Patriot. Liberty. Equality.

REPUBLIC OF HAYTI. PROCLAMATION

Alexander Petion, President of Hayti.

To the people and the Army.

The French flag has appeared on our coast, and the King of France has sent commissioners to Hayti.

Under what circumstances did they present themselves! At the moment that we were about consecrating the edifice of our laws—At the moment I was called by your choice to defend it, at the height of the enthusiasm of a nation the most jealous of its rights, have they proposed to compromise them! for what advantages? Are there any preferable to those we enjoy? There does not exist a Haytian whose soul is sufficiently lukewarm to consent to retrace his steps in the path our glory has urged us on, our duties are pointed out: nature gave them birth, she has created us, equal with other men: we will sustain them against all who dare conceive the criminal desire of subjugating us. They will only find in these shores, ashes mixt in blood, the sword, and an avenging climate.

On this occasion, as on that which preceded it, you have shewn the same circumspection and the same respect for the rights of men. You have calculated your strength, and in leaving to your Magistrates the task of explaining your dearest interests, you have patiently waited until they explained what they had done for you; your confidence, shall never be betrayed.

The authority rests on your will, and if your will be free and independent: you shall be so, and we give the terrible example to the universe of burying ourselves under the ruins of our country, sooner than return to servitude, even in its most modified form.

Haytians your protection is your arms reserve them, for those that may disturb you, and let your labour enrich a soil whose fruits you only shall collect.

I have had printed in my correspondence with the commissioners of the King, it will be placed under your eyes I have done my duty, and my duty is yours.

Signed at the National Palace of Port au Prince, 12th Nov. 1816, the 13th year of the independence of Hayti. &c. &c.

PETION.

B. INFAMIC, Secretary general.

FROM NEW-ORLEANS.

We have correct intelligence from New-Orleans to the 1st instant. The Venezuelan privateer Jupiter had captured within pistol shot of the Balize the Spanish brig La Regna de los Angeles, and the Spanish schooner Hipolita, both bound from Campeachy to New-Orleans. The crews of the two vessels were landed except the captains, who were detained on board the privateer. In consequence of this unwarrantable outrage committed within the jurisdiction of their neutrality, Commodore Patterson had taken prompt measures to capture and bring in the privateer. The New-Orleans Gazette remarks upon the occasion, that "anxious as we are for the success of the Patriots, we are not less anxious that they should be taught to respect the laws of the United States."

RICHMOND, Dec. 30.

Dinner to Gen. Gaines.

On Saturday last, an elegant dinner was given to this distinguished soldier and citizen at the Bell Tavern—but it was not the elegance, but the warm heart felt welcome, which gave it its highest zest—Thomas Wilson, esq. the Mayor, presided at one table, assisted by D. Fouchee, sen.—At the other, Mr. Starnard (Speaker of the House of Delegates,) and Andrew Stevenson, esq. presided—Among the guests, were also Gen. Scott, the present and late Governors, &c. &c. A respectable proportion of the members of the two Houses of the Legislature, and a large body of citizens, participated of the pleasures of these scenes.

Virginia Legislature.

The house of Delegates were engaged nearly four hours on Saturday, in committee of the whole, on the New Bank Bill, which he sketched in our last. The 1st section only was gone through—and several amendments proposed, some adopted.

One, that the amount of shares is not to exceed one hundred dollars. Another, to strike out "on money," so to make the shares be paid for only in "coin," and "at such rates as are authorized in the subscription to the bank of the U. States."

The committee were about to take up the 2d Section, when a motion was made for them to rise—which prevailed. Adjourned till this day, 10 o'clock.

Married, on Tuesday evening, by the Rev. Mr. Wilmer, Mr. Richard L. Douglass, of Charles county, Maryland, to Miss Maria Blacklock, of this place.

Departed this mortal state in the triumph of faith and rapturous joy, yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Eliza Fowell. Her friends and acquaintance are respectfully invited to attend her funeral this morning at 10 o'clock from the house of her late husband on Water street, to the burial ground belonging to the Presbyterian Church.

PORTLAND, December 24.

Arrived brig Jane, Ratter, Kingston, Jamaica, 50 days. Nov 17, lat. 21 57, long 84 65, was boarded by a schooner under American colors, which her officers called the US schooner Independence. On the 22d at 4 pm half past four sailed standing for us—half past four tacked ship and stood to the eastward, and we soon discovered the sail to be the same schooner met with on the 17th; not shewing her colors she ran athwart our weather bow and fired two volleys of musketry & one 18 pounder loaded with round, grape and cannister into us, by which our topmast backstays were cut away, shivered our rudder head & stern timbers, tore up three of our quarter deck planks; we were rendered completely a wreck: he then ordered our boat on board and when alongside was received with extreme abuse. When captain R related the damage he had sustained he was ordered to return to his own vessel, or he would send him to damnation; the pirate then made sail and left us. Spoke November 29. lat 26 5, lon 80 10, bound Washington from Salem for Matanzas 24 days out.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

Hill and Dale, Fred. County, Virginia, December 30.

Abandoned from this plantation on the night of the 24th instant, without the smallest provocation or known cause, a very black young man, supposed to be 22 or 23 years of age and about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, strong and robust and broad over the shoulders. He had new cloaths of home made cloth fully dressed in a drab color, but I have some reason to think he sold them and may appear in what is called his Sunday cloaths, the coat of which is brown cloth pretty much worn, but he has other cloaths and may change them. I will give Fifty Dollars if apprehended out of the state of Virginia, and Twenty five if taken in the state or district of Columbia and brought home to me or lodged in a jail so that I get him again. Masters of vessels are admonished, at their peril, from taking him on board and conveying him away.

John Hopkins.

ROBBERY.

On the night of the 6th of December, 1816, the Exchange Office of the subscriber, Bridge street, Georgetown, from appearances by a false key, was robbed of the following property, in specie, consisting of dollars, change, American and English gold, about $200 dollars; bank notes, mostly three dollar notes of the bank of Washington, and some small tickets, together about $30 dollars, a one pound note of the bank of England, and one hundred and sixty four lottery tickets as per numbers below. The lottery tickets can be of no use, to the persons taking them, and an attempt to pass them would only lead to a detection. It is therefore hoped that the person or persons who took them, will return them to the subscriber through the Post Office at Georgetown. A liberal Reward will be paid by the subscriber for any information that may lead to the discovery of the persons who have stolen the property. All keepers of lottery offices in the United States will please to keep a list of the numbers of the following tickets, as it may lead to a discovery of the theft.
